MISCELLANY.

A thief arrested in at Indian town the other day, was found in possession of sixty-eight of the garments which ladies put on first when dressing.

A Kentucky judge has decided that a man has no right to harness his wife to a plow, no, not even with a mule. And yet women complain that they have no rights.

An Illinois farmer's wife "declares to goodness" that, after all the pamphlets which have been written about egg-laying, she can't see that the hens take head and do a bit better than they used to twenty years ago.

A man who was recently hanged in Canada for killing his landlord made a speech on the scaffold, in which he expressed a hope that "this might be a warning to other landlords who persisted in dunning their poor tenants."

The fact, which just transpires, that Philadelphia has a surplus of 20,000 females, suggests the gloomy reflection that the Quaker City had motives aside from patriotism in getting up the Centennial Exhibition.—Boston Transcript.

A writer in the Philadelphia Item states that the silly fashion of ladies exchanging kisses whenever they meet, if it be every day in the week, is going out of fashion. It was always considered a prodigious and unwarrantable waste of sweetness.

A Fifth-avenue lady, on a visit to Europe, has left two poodles in charge of a dog doctor, for the keeping of which she is to pay $200 yearly, and provide a carriage once a month in which the pets are to be aired.

The girl who can put a square patch on a pair of pantaloons may not be so accomplished as one who can embroider and work green worsted dogs on blue ground, but she will be more useful at the head of a large family.—N. O. Republican.

Miss Sheldton of Marshall, Iowa, could not get damages of her lover in a breach of promise suit, but she could not did throw red pepper in his eyes as he was going out of the court room.

An old man's advice to a young man is: "Don't love two girls at once.—Love is a good thing, but it is like butter in warm weather.—It won't do to keep too much on hand at once."

The value of a stolen kiss is to be determined in Brooklyn, where a young lady sues a forest for snatching a salute from her two lips while he was plating to her sash a nosegay she had purchased. The price demanded is $5,000.

A man with a little child in his arms ran down the hill to catch the moving train at Hastings, New York, and, jumping at the handrail of the first car, stumbled and fell with the child underneath him. With great presence of mind he lay flat on his face holding the child, while the wheels of five cars scraped his body, and the axles brushed his hair.

At a prayer-meeting the other evening a brother who was relating his experience, bore testimony to the fact that religion had a great deal to do in strengthening a man's courage, and added: "I never had gun for my life but once, and that was the second week after I was married. If she hadn't stumbled and broken her neck I don't believe I'd be here now."

Old Mr. Grewer, who lives in Roxbury, created considerable excitement in church last Sunday afternoon. During the sermon the old gentleman dropped asleep, with his head resting on the back of the pew; his nose, by some means, got wedged into the book-rack in such a manner that it was impossible for him to free himself without help. He snorted and banged round till the sexton split open the rack and got his nose out in a damaged condition.—Boston Sunday Times.

The Melbourne Herald of March 31st had this: "A rumor is current in Melbourne to-day that W. M. Tweed, the gigantic New York swindler, and chief of the Tammany Ring, arrived from San Francisco in the last mail steamer, and has been seen in this city. The detectives have received the information, and taken the matter in hand. The authorities have been communicated with from America in anticipation of the possibility of the 'Boss' taking refuge here, and his description is in hand."

Pat and His Master's Pig.

A stingy man is so nearly related to a thief that he should not be surprised if thieves get intimate with him at his cost, as is illustrated by the following incident:

A Yorkshireman, having killed a pig, and not wishing to divide with his neighbors, as was his custom, said to his man, (who, by the way, was a son of the Emerald Isle):

"Pat, if I give the neighbors, who have given to me, a piece of my pork, I'll have none for myself. Can you tell me what I am to do?"

"Bedad, sir," said Pat, "it's meself that can do that same thing."

"Good!" said the Yorkshireman, rubbing his hands and looking at Pat. "Now, tell me what I am to do?"

"Faith, sir," said Pat, "sure and when the craythur is claned, just be afther hanging it against the door, where ivery mother's son of thim will see it; and early in the morning, before any one is about, get up and take in your pig and hide it away. Thin when your neighbors come, just be afther telling that the pig was shote."

"Capital idea, Pat!" exclaimed the Yorkshireman, "I'll do it, by George!"

So, when the pig was cleaned it was hung up outside, so that the neighbors might see it. The countryman anxiously waited the approaching night, and at last retired to bed, but not to sleep. Pat, under cover of the darkness of the night, crept around the house and stole the pig.

What was the astonishment of the Yorkshireman when, at early dawn, he arose to hide away his pig, but found no pig there, can be better imagined than described. Pat came in with his "Top o' the mornin' to ye, sir," and giving him a knowing wink, said: "Master, how about the pig?"

"Well, Pat, the pig was stolen in reality."

"Faith, and that sounds just as natural as if you had lost your pig," said Pat with another knowing wink.

"But, you blockhead! Did you the pig was stolen?"

Faith, and begorra! the sorra a bit o' me thought you could act so well. Just stick to that; it's natural as life!"

"But," roared the now irate Yorkshireman, "I tell you the pig was stolen!"

"Och, bejabers!" said Pat, "stick to it, and yer nabors will believe you, and sorra a bit of it they'll get. Faith, I didn't think you could do it so well!"

The Austlin Reville relates the following: A young gentleman of this city accompanied a young lady to church last Sunday evening, and when the contribution plate was handed around he thought he would be high-toned, and with an air of importance he chucked a ten-dollar piece into the plate. The next day being Monday and "steamer day," his washerwoman spoke a little piece to him, and he found that he needed some money in his business. The oration of his landress convinced him that he must have coin, so he went to the Deacon or Vestryman, or whatever the collecting official of the church is called, and told him he had made a mistake; he said he had dropped a ten-dollar piece into the plate in mistake for a quarter, and asked for $3 75 change. The Deacon told him he was very sorry, but there were no dimes in the church, and the official young man was obliged to tell the Deacon at a sacrifice in order to appease the angry feelings of the lady who does up his linen.

The following advertisement has appeared in an Australian journal: "Wanted, for Mr. McLean's establishment at Euabalong, a housemaid, whose duties will be to assist in the laundry and wait at parlor table occasionally. Character no object. Current wages. The proprietor deems it his duty to inform intending helps that the last lady who filled the situation was married by the Rev. Mr. Sores, to a gentleman with £400 in the bank. The previous lady was married by the Rev. Mr. Fullerton, at Sydney, to a gentleman worth £30,000 cash. The two previous ladies were also married, and are very nicely settled indeed."

The Sorehead Club, a Democratic body, has been organized in the Ninth Ward. Its leaders talk of holding a public meeting in Platt's Hall. If all the soreheads are to be taken in, they had better meet in the Pavilion.—Alta.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would therefore say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground, when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the last stages of the disease, and approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you persist in procrastination, the time will come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the Doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of this treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill, or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave. Full course of treatment $25.00. Send money by Post Office order or Express with full description of case. Call, or Address, DR. A. B. SPINNEY, No. 11, Kearny Street San Francisco. ap25-1y.
